A Delightful Work of Humor

The Wooing of Calvin Parks

By LAURA E. RICHARDS

Author of "Captain January," "Geoffrey Strong,"

"Mrs. Tree's Will," etc., etc.

In this story, the creator of "Geoffrey Strong" and "Mrs. Tree" reverts to one of the happiest of her many phases of activity, and portrays with delightful reality the queer, quaint, odd, and lovable characters of her own "Down East" neighborhood. With loving touch and without the suspicion of exaggeration or unkindly caricature, she acquaints us with the homely virtues, droll conceits, and pithy saws of the fast vanishing New England types. It is a book with a laugh on every page, a surprise in every chapter, and not a tear from beginning to end.

THE STATUE

By EDEN PHILLPOTTS and ARNOLD BENNETT

THIS is a big novel in every sense of the word, big in conception, powerful in plot and action, vigorously drawn. The scene is in England; the story has an international flavor; the issues involved, political and social, are of the larger kind; several of the principal characters have force, individuality and reality sufficient to make them, and the fine story that gives them birth, long remembered.

The novel is finely written. It has style, power. It sweeps the reader from scene to scene, holding his interest, absorbing him wholly. It leaves him, at the close of the exciting climax, with the feeling of satisfaction that follows the reading of only a few books each year.

Illustrated by T. K. Hanna. 12mo, $1.50.

THE MAN WITHOUT A HEAD

By TYLER DE SAIX

HERE is a detective story which is at least the equal, in power and suspense, of any which has appeared in many years. The scene is laid in England, principally in London, and the hero is a young German recently annexed to the staff of Scotland Yard. The story is one which depends for its powerful grip on the attention upon the keen clash of wits between the pursuer and the pursued.

It, therefore, harks back to the brainier school of detective fiction, of which it is a highly successful example. Its hold on the imagination and attention of the reader is simply irresistible. Its success ought to be pronounced.

Illustrated by M. Leone Bracker. $1.50.

NOTE: These two novels are both of the sort that often sell in very big figures. Do not compare THE STATUE with Mr. Phillpotts's usual output. It bears no comparison whatever with his other books. It is a fine example of the OPPENHEIM kind of book, and ought to win. As to THE MAN WITHOUT A HEAD, just read it yourself when it comes along. You'll be glad of the tip. We rest our case on the result. Be sure and read it.

REMEMBER, September 5 is the day for

THE BIG FELLOW

FREDERICK PALMER'S big, fine American novel.

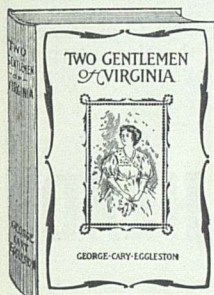

It will prove at once one of the events of the season. We are confident of it and so will you be a few weeks from now.

TWO NEW NOVELS BY POPULAR AUTHORS

By GEORGE CARY EGGLESTON
Two Gentlemen of Virginia

Illustrated by FRANK T. MERRILL. $1.50

NO one but a Virginian gentleman is quite capable of depicting the ideal called to mind by that term, and no one lives better qualified to do so than George Cary Eggleston. He tells, with great feeling and deep knowledge, how a young man who had won prosperity in the West, inherited a run-down plantation with its outfit of negroes, in connection with whom the young master tried interesting social experiments. As a love story, it is charming; as a picture of the "Old Régime," it is matchless.

By CHARLES CLARK MUNN
Myrtle Baldwin

Illustrated by HENRY ROTH. $1.50

THE heroine arouses first the pity and then the love of the hero. Pride and mistakes lead to a double quest, each for the other, and the tangled threads of their lives continually fail of unwinding in unity until almost too late. Both the baseness and the goodness of the world as it is, with love triumphant over the discouragements, are brought out with the power of a man who has something to tell, and the practised skill of one who has reached the height of success in his own field with which to tell it.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT TO THE TRADE

Ready September 12

MR. PARRISH'S FIRST SEA STORY

THE LAST VOYAGE OF THE DONNA ISABEL

¶ The publishers believe that this is the best story they have yet brought out by Randall Parrish. It is no exaggeration to say that it is worthy of a place on the same shelf with the sea romances of Clark Russell and Stevenson—so absorbing is the plot and so vivid are the pictures of wild adventure on Antarctic seas.

¶ The story concerns the search for a lost Spanish galleon which the hero believes to have been buried in the ice for over a century. There is plenty of mystery and excitement, and Mr. Parrish can be depended upon for a delightful love story.

PETER: A NOVEL OF WHICH HE IS NOT THE HERO*Illustrated. $1.50

This remarkable novel has not been published before in any form. Fine, wholesome and optimistic; will be a source of joy and delight to those who believe that our civilization is growing better rather than worse. Peter Grayson is a banker of the old school, a middle-aged man of high ideals and of a buoyant, cheery optimism. The young hero, quixotic, illogical but true-hearted, and the heroine, a fascinating girl who can work and play with equal charm and grace, and the other characters are people of moderate means and fine, healthy principles, who live in an atmosphere of simplicity and good breeding. It is a sane, reasonable and happy story, full of amusing incidents and of excitement.

AN OLYMPIC VICTORA STORY OF THE MODERN GAMES*Illustrated. $1.25

A vigorous, thrilling love story of modern Greece, full of delightful sentiment and which reaches its climax in the great Marathon race at the revival of the Olympic Games in 1896. Loues, the hero of the story, is one of the Greek contestants in that race. No description in modern fiction of an athletic struggle can equal this account of that thrilling race. His story of the straining, gruelling struggle, the heart-breaking efforts of the runners over those twenty-four miles of country roads from Marathon to Athens, the gradual collapse of one man after another until the stadium with its thousands of tumultuously cheering spectators greets the victor with the cry, "A Greek," "A Greek," is soul stirring.

NOTES IN SEASON.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have just ready Openheim's latest novel, "The Avenger," an ingenious and exciting mystery tale fully up to the standard of this prolific and ingenious teller of stories. The plot is even cleverer than usual and the method of telling highly original.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. will issue early in September a new novel by Ezra S. Brudno, entitled "The Tether," a novel of virile realism, depicting the life of the American Jew with exceptional strength. The author will be remembered by his novel "The Fugitive," which was a success a few years ago.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish August 29 F. Hopkinson Smith's new novel, "Peter;" James B. Connelly's "An Olympic Victor," a vigorous love story of modern Greece; and Henry B. Fuller's "Waldo Trench and Others," tales of love and adventure among the Americans who live in Florence, Rome and other foreign cities.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. have just issued the long-expected novel, "The Statue," the joint work of Eden Phillpotts and Arthur Bennett, two totally dissimilar novelists, of which the scene is England and its interests, social and political, of the larger kind; and an exciting detective story by Tyler de Saix, entitled "The Man Without a Head." Early in September they will bring out "The Big Fellow," by Frederick Palmer, author of the very remarkable novel "The Vagabond." Mr. Palmer has taken a big American for his hero, simple, magnetic and full of boyish unaffectedness.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have just ready a novel by Henry L. Stewart, a new writer, entitled "Weeping Cross," which deals with the Puritan period of New England, the hero of which is a young Irish cavalier, educated as a Jesuit priest, of several years' service as a soldier, who is sold into slavery to a New England planter by the British Crown; "Blotting Book," a detective story involving a mysterious crime, by E. F. Benson; "My School and My Gospel," by Sir Hubert Herkomer, the first account by Sir Hubert Herkomer himself of his famous school at Bushey, where he worked from 1883 to 1904, and which has been a subject for controversy among artists and critics ever since it was opened; "Round the Corner in Gay Street," by Grace S. Richmond; "Studies in the American Race Problem," by Alfred Holt Stone; also, "Altar Stairs," by G. B. Lancaster.

THE LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD Co. will publish September 1 a novel entitled "Myrtle Baldwin," by Charles Clark Munn, author of "Uncle Terry," and other widely-read works of fiction. The object of Mr. Munn's new book is to present the actual events of life amid the workaday people of a busy city, and beyond that how hard it is for a self-respecting young girl of average good looks, and without friends or money to obtain an honest livelihood there. The story shows with great dramatic force how many allurements she will inevitably meet, how many temptations will assail her, and how she will eventually have to show herself made of heroic fibre. To add to this piquant interest, the hero of the story is one of those often-abused, heroic, keen-witted men, known as commercial travellers, one who knows both the upper and the under world of the great city as only these wide-awake men do. The Rev. George W. Hinckley, head of Good Will Farm Association, after reading an advance copy, says: "This story is full of intense human interest, carries a strong moral lesson, and because of the light it throws on imperilled girlhood, and the warning, wholesome and strong, that it contains, I wish it might go into every home in the land."

A young New Yorker educated as a landscape gardener is hired by a Florida millionaire to beautify his acres at Palm Beach. He meets the proprietor's adopted daughter, falls in love, and learns she has married clandestinely to have a right to a name, she being a foundling. The whole story turns around the lover and the husband. The husband plays a most unselfish rôle; the end is satisfactory. Quite a picture of the life of the rich and idle. The firing line is the line of danger, which the heroine often crosses recklessly but ignorantly.

Emerson, Willis G. The smoky god; or, a voyage to the inner world; with il. by J. A. Williams. Chic., Forbes & Co., 1908. c. 186 p. D. cl., $1.

Olaf Jansen tells the story of his astounding discovery of the inner world—the hollow centre of the earth, inhabited by a race of gigantic and highly civilized people. In the identical centre of this vast vacuum is the seat of electricity—a mammoth ball of dull red fire, surrounded by a white, mild, luminous cloud, giving light to the country and known as the abode of the "smoky god." Openings at the poles of our world form the only entrances to the "inner world." The long-lost Garden of Eden is supposed to be situated in this marvelous "within" land.

In simple, straightforward style, Sir Hubert von Herkomer, one of the best known of living English artists, relates the story of his school and his theories of painting. He established his famous art school thirty-four years ago in the little village of Bushey, England. The book is a very handsome one, neatly bound in gray boards, with canvas back and paper label; it contains a wealth of illustrations, some by the author, others by his pupils, reproduced from the Palette, the magazine published by the school, and two at least from Punch, the latter reflecting with gentle satire upon the Professor and his methods.

Morrow, W. C. Lentalala of the south seas: the romantic tale of a lost colony; the illustrations from oil paintings by Maynard Dixon. N. Y., Frederick A. Stokes Co., [1908.] c. '07. 5+278 p. O. cl., *$1.50.

The barkentine "Hope," carrying two hundred and fifty English colonists, consisting of men, women and children, after a series of frightful storms is wrecked on a strange volcanic island in the South Sea, which at first appears uninhabited until a band of savage warriors appears upon the scene. Following are singular and thrilling adventures with the natives and the perils of the place. The story of the colonists' escape from imminent death through the agency of the mysterious Lentalala, and their wandering through the chasms and on the heights of the remarkable island, holds one spellbound. There is an unusual love affair.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 22, 1908.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE HANDLING OF BAD BOOKS.

THE question of how to stem the tide of actually bad books is a very serious and vital one to the American booktrade. Much attention has been given in the public press and by the booktrade itself to this question, and it is worth while to emphasize again and again the following resolution adopted by the American Booksellers' Association at this year's annual convention:

Resolved, That recognizing the responsibility of the bookseller in disseminating the literature of the community, this Association feels called upon at this time to use its influence to discourage the publication and sale of books of pronounced immoral plot and tone.

Until quite recently, books of the character indicated were sold sneakily and surreptitiously. Publishers of this class of printed matter did not expect respectable booksellers to sell them, and the handling of them was mostly done by dealers in little shops in by streets and lanes or on the street by furtive peddlers, who appealed to the salacious element of human nature as the tout laid for the victims of the gambling houses. We have gotten bravely beyond that stage, and the so-called "problem novel" of to-day, of the sexual variety, flaunts itself in flaming advertisements, and has until recently been found on the counters of reputable dealers. The evolution of this class of novel has been gradual. The "problem novel," naturally, took up problems dealing with the relations of men and women as such, and some of the great classic novels are founded on this question. The "Scarlet Letter," "Adam Bede" and "Tess" do not, however, depict salaciously criminal relations, but logically and dramatically present the evil consequences that follow such relations. The Manchester School Board, in confusing such books with the modern salacious novel, therefore, made a fundamental mistake. The "questionable" books of the day find no excuse for being in the examples of the great novelists of the past.

Some of the recent productions of the English and the American publishing houses come uncomfortably close to the border line of the indecent, the deluge being chiefly from English writers—women writers at that; but American novelists have recently also been following the pace set abroad.

More than one magazine has been at least careless in permitting writers to picture or discuss scenes that transgress good taste or good morals; and it has been extremely difficult for editors of literary and booktrade journals to draw the line as to books which, in the interest of decency and morality, should be excluded from exploitation. It is claimed for the most notorious of these books that its offense has been chiefly in inviting reckless imitation. It is true that there has been such reckless imitation; but that there have been worse books does not make this particular book better. We shall not quote specific titles, because nothing is more unwise than to advertise the Index Prohibitorum. The book in question, after it had been rejected by several publishers, appeared on the list of an otherwise reputable publisher, and was widely exploited before attention had been drawn to its now notorious character. THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, when it became fully aware of its character, declined to take part in its further exploitation, with the result that the publisher has chosen to sever all relations with this office.

When a druggist dispenses poison, he is required by law to put a red label on the bottle, or to mark it in some distinctive manner by confining it in a corrugated bottle, and locking it up in a special closet, admission to which, besides, is announced by the ringing of a bell to make clear that it is poison. One American publisher has chosen to print a series of books of the class named, in characteristic red covers and to exploit them on yellow paper, segregating this class of books by another imprint than that of his personal name and list. But most publishers who have permitted themselves to indulge in this class of books have not been so candid, and it has been difficult therefore for the retail booktrade to know in advance what to avoid.

The publishing business is, and should be, one of the most creditable of occupations. The publisher should have a pride, as the author should have a pride, in presenting books which elevate instead of inflame their readers. Doubtless, books have appeared on reputable publishers' lists without due thought as to their character and consequences. But when a publisher allows himself to issue this class of publications he lowers the level of his calling, and if he is shunned in society or cut in his club, he has only himself to blame. This wave of bad literature undoubtedly is already on the wane and will shortly pass away altogether; but it is a present danger to the booktrade. Several journals have declined advertisements of such books, and many retailers have declined to permit their shelves to be made a medium for the corruption of the people; and it is to be noted to the credit of the American booktrade that the firm whose name is most closely associated with the wide distribution of fiction in cheap form has declined in specific cases to take up books which were certain of large sales for the definite reason that they were as unwilling to lend a hand in distributing such poison to the masses as they were unwilling to engage in the rum business. The fair fame of the booktrade is involved in this question, and it is to be hoped that the retailers will do their best to fulfil the spirit of the resolution of the American Booksellers' Association.

AN APPEAL TO THE TRADE.

THE following letter, and the accompanying resolutions, addressed to the trade by the American Booksellers' Association, are commended to the careful consideration of every publisher and bookseller interested in the preservation of publishing and bookselling. Words without action, however, will avail nothing, and it will require the best efforts of the weakest in the trade to bring about the results aimed at in the resolutions:

NEW YORK, August 12, 1908.

We submit to you the resolutions adopted by the American Booksellers' Association, at its recent convention, held in New York City, May 19 and 20. They are the result of careful consideration; represent the wishes of practically the entire booktrade of this country, and it is firmly believed that the adoption of the suggestions contained therein would end the present era of unprofitable bookselling, and put the business on a basis of profit for author, publisher and bookseller alike, and result in a much increased sale of books.

Relative to the unprofitableness of bookselling, we quote from carefully-prepared papers presented at our convention, written by men of ability and experience, as follows:

In a recent business convention a leading manufacturer made the statement that no retail business could be profitably or safely conducted on a margin of less than 33⅓ per cent. of the selling price. He further stated that when his house found a dealer was doing business on a less profit than 33⅓ per cent. they declined to sell him, because they knew it was only a question of time when that dealer would fail. And yet, in spite of this established law of merchandising, (and it is an established law observed in nearly all retail lines,) many booksellers are endeavoring to conduct their business on half this margin; that is, they frequently buy $1.50 books at 40 off, or 90 cents, and sell at $1.08, leaving the absurd profit of 18 cents, or 16⅔ per cent. As it costs 25 per cent. to do business, it can readily be seen why booksellers do not own automobiles or steam yachts.

To the bookseller's mind the fault is probably with the publishers. Either they should give the retailer a larger discount or they should compel the retailer to sell his books at a higher price.

And as follows:

It is absolutely correct to say that the cost of doing business is 25 per cent. rather than 20.

It does not seem to have occurred to many booksellers that, when they buy a special bill of the "standards," at, we will say, a discount of 40 per cent., and, possibly, in some few instances, on slightly better terms, there is still a greater possibility of loss than of profit. These books which are usually retailed at a discount of 25 per cent. only show a margin of just 20 per cent. on a business costing 25 per cent. to carry on. In other words, a $1.50 book sold for $1.12, costing 90 cents, pays a gross profit of 22 cents, and the expense of doing business being 28 cents, there is a loss of 6 cents. If the same book is sold to a library at one-third, or $1, and the expense of doing business is 25 cents, the bookseller has made a gross profit of 10 cents to offset the running expenses of 25 cents, and, consequently, a loss of 15 cents.

It is a probable fact that no payment for new books has been made to publishers in this country during the past five or ten years by any bookseller, without drawing for such payment money acquired by selling merchandise other than new books.

These extracts tell in brief, but truly, the exact situation of the general retail bookselling business.

It is earnestly hoped you will see the way clear to put into immediate operation the recommendations made in the resolutions. Such action will surely result in benefit to all concerned, and insure for such publishers as do accede the good will and hearty co-operation of the entire booktrade of the country. The American Booksellers' Association asks for every bookseller in this broad land of ours a chance to sell books at a price that will yield a fair living profit, and it is earnestly hoped, nay, it is firmly believed, that the publishers will see fit to sell their publications at such prices and on such terms as will insure this end.

The resolutions are:

Resolved, In the strong and well-considered resolutions adopted by this convention last year, we would again urge the publishers that they issue all new copyrighted books in the future at a fixed price, which shall be the actual selling and published price, based upon the salable value of the books, with an additional charge for postage when mailed; and we further urge the attention of the publishers to the other resolutions passed at the convention of last year, and venture to suggest that unless the subject matter covered in these resolutions is acted upon, all hope as to the successful future of the "new book" business of the United States may as well be abandoned. With the adoption of such policy and the making of the publishers' advertised price the real price, thus cutting off the qualifying terms, such as "net," "protected," etc., there is no reason why the book business cannot be maintained and made profitable to author, publisher, dealer and purchaser alike.

Resolved, That in our opinion it is radically wrong to ask the American booksellers to stand the cost of manufacture, advertising, etc., of the books published by our American publishers and have these [books] in turn sold by said publishers at such prices to foreign dealers that will permit importation by our American libraries at lower or as low rates as they are sold direct to the American bookseller.

It would seem only fair that the cost of production should be distributed equally over the entire output, whether sold in America or Europe, and we would request that our Committee on Relations with the Publishers give this matter its immediate attention.

Resolved, That we deprecate such methods of doing business as secures to libraries and other consumers not dealers a price as low or lower than is given to the bookseller.

Resolved, That, recognizing the responsibility of the bookseller in disseminating the literature of the community, this Association feels called upon at this time to use its influence to discourage the publication and sale of books of pronounced immoral plot and tone.

Your early and favorable action is hoped for.

Very truly yours,

WALTER L. BUTLER, President.
ALBERT B. FIFIELD, Secretary.

W. MILLARD PALMER, Committee
W. H. CATHCART, on
C. E. WOLCOTT, Relations
J. K. GILL, with
A. C. WALKER, Publishers.
W. B. CLARKE, Chairman.

The following are the resolutions adopted at the 1907 convention of the American Booksellers' Association:

WHEREAS, The members of the American Booksellers' Association, assembled together at their seventh annual convention, recognizing the necessity for improving the unsatisfactory conditions prevailing in the retail book business of the United States, now therefore be it

Resolved, That we urge the publishers of new copyrighted books to issue all such volumes in the future at a net price based upon the salable value of the books, with an additional charge for postage when mailed.

Resolved, That we request a minimum discount from the advertised price, sufficient to cover the cost of transacting business with a margin for profit, in accordance with custom in other branches of mercantile business.

Resolved, That it is desirable to have the net price permanent, except that works of fiction and juvenile books may, if not successful, be sold as remainders one year after publication, and books may be utilized for the "Rebind" trade after two years, at a net price to be maintained for at least one year additional.

Resolved, That we recommend that the sliding scale of discount be materially revised, in order to reduce the wide discrepancy in purchasing price between the buyer of small quantities in all classes of literature, and the large buyer of a few titles in a special class.

Resolved, That we suggest that the extra discount to the jobber on all books be discontinued, except on condition that he shall not use the special reduction in competing with the retail dealer, for whose benefit he has been specially favored.

Resolved, That we think it desirable to still allow to public libraries only the 10 per cent. discount upon net books, as at present.

Resolved, That we consider that the established discount allowed to dealers be conditional upon such dealer carrying a stock of books of reasonable size, and that a book is understood to be a printed volume bound in covers more substantial than paper.

Resolved, That we deprecate the breaking of the subscription price of periodicals, and recommend that abolition of the "Combination" system, and commend those publishers who have firmly maintained their publication price.

Resolved, That this Association recommend that the booksellers of the United States make an unusual effort on their part to push the sale of such volumes of salable fiction as may be published at a net price with a proper discount.

Resolved, That we recognize with grateful appreciation the cordial spirit of co-operation with which so many department stores, proprietors and their managers have responded to the efforts now being made to prevent the extinction of the new book business, and that all such department store proprietors are cordially invited to ally themselves with the American Booksellers' Association.

Resolved, That these resolutions be sent to the publishers of the United States, and that the president and secretary be directed to explain to them the reasons for the resolutions, and to convey to each publisher our grateful appreciation of their efforts in our behalf.

Resolved, That the President and the Postmaster-General be, and are, hereby requested to offer the extension of our domestic letter rate to all the world.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A SUGGESTED REMEDY FOR PRICE-CUTTING.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: It is generally admitted, I believe, that the price-cutting evil in the American book-trade is scarcely less detrimental in the long run to the publisher than to the bookseller; and that both would earnestly support any feasible remedy for the evil.

It is also admitted that, to be successful, any method of abolishing price-cutting must be in the nature of a co-operative movement between publishers and booksellers—that it must be accepted and religiously supported by the best publishers and the best booksellers. Neither could accomplish the purpose without the other, and each body would need the support of a majority of its own members.

With the above points admitted, or taken for granted, I should like to outline a plan for maintaining the retail prices of current books which, as it seems to me, would be feasible and effective.

In the first place, let the members of the American Publishers' Association agree that, beginning January 1, 1909, they will issue all new books at net prices, with a uniform discount to the trade of 10 per cent. Then let the Association submit to every bookseller in the American trade a blank contract form substantially like the following:

In consideration of special discounts allowed us, we hereby agree to maintain for one year from publication date the full published price of every new book issued by the firms named herein.

Every dealer signing this contract and filing it with the American Publishers' Association would be entitled to such further discounts during the term of his contract as might be agreed upon, these discounts to be so fixed as to allow the dealer a gross profit of not less than 30 per cent. A list of all dealers signing this contract would then be sent to the various publishers in the Association and to all jobbers of books, and bills for purchases rendered accordingly. No dealer whose name did not appear in this list would be entitled to a discount of more than 10 per cent. Jobbers would be supplied by the publishers only on condition that they maintained the terms of this agreement.

The effect of such a plan would be that those who refused to maintain published prices could buy books only on terms that would make price-cutting prohibitive. Those who signed the agreement and then cut prices would be subject to suit for breach of contract.

There are, of course, a number of minor points to be worked out in connection with the plan; but these would not effect the main idea as I have tried to outline it. I should be much interested in knowing how such a plan is regarded by the trade.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18, 1908.

THE DANGER OF ADVANCE PAYMENTS TO AUTHORS.

THE subject of advance payments to authors has become a burning question with the English publishing trade. H. A. Moncrieff, a well-known accountant in London, is responsible for the following statement quoted by the London correspondent of the New York Herald:

"It is certain that the profits now made by legitimate publishing houses do not warrant the fancy prices constantly demanded and too often paid for modern fiction. I shall betray no confidence when I state that in at least three businesses which I have wound up I have found that the amounts lost by way of advances and overpayments to authors, chiefly novelists, more than equalled the total liabilities due to ordinary creditors."

LARGER PACKAGES BY FOREIGN POST.

POSTMASTER MORGAN, of New York City, has received advice that the limit of weight on parcels post packages for and from Great Britain will hereafter be eleven pounds, or five kilograms, and that there will be no limit to the value of the contents. The limit heretofore has been four pounds six ounces in weight and $50 in value. The postage rate remains at 12 cents a pound.

THE ESPERANTO CONGRESS.

THE fourth international congress of Esperantists noted in last issue shows this special form of a universal language is meeting with more and more favor. Ten new societies were reported in the United States and five in the Philippines. Count Leo Tolstoi sent special greetings. The congress has decided to publish books in Esperanto for the blind and to prepare exhibits to give information concerning the world language.

OBITUARY NOTES.

JOHN H. HENNESSY, for several years associated with the Collier publications, died August 12 in the Jewish Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., where he was operated on for appendicitis. His home was at No. 447 East Ninth Street, Flatbush. He was forty-three years old.

REV. DR. HENRY HOPKINS, who recently resigned as president of Williams College, died at Rotterdam, Holland, on Tuesday, August 18. Dr. Hopkins was born at Williamstown in 1837. He was the son of Mark Hopkins, who also served as president of Williams College from 1836 to 1872.

IRA D. SANKEY, who achieved world-wide fame as evangelist, singer and author of hymns sung specially in the Moody and Sankey revival meetings of a generation ago, died Thursday, August 13, at his home at 148 South Oxford Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Sankey was born at Edenburg, Pa., in 1840. He had been blind for five years before his death. His song books are said to have had a circulation of 50,000,000 copies.

LEROY E. HARTLEY, a member of the news staff of The Brooklyn Eagle, died Monday, August 17, after a long illness at his home, 285 Clarkson Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Hartley practiced law in New Jersey for a while, and at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war went to Cuba with the Fifth Regiment, N. G. N. J., as a lieutenant. He served as aide-de-camp on General Wheeler's staff. After the war he took up newspaper work. Mr. Hartley reported the San Francisco earthquake and a number of other large disasters for Eastern newspapers.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

CHARLES HANSON TOWNE has become literary editor of The Delineator, The Designer and The New Idea Woman's Magazine.

JOHN VANCE CHENEY, the librarian of the Newberry Library of Chicago, will hereafter conduct the review pages of The Chicago Examiner.

J. F. MEEHAN, the well-known bookseller of Bath, Eng., has contributed to the London Album, for August, an illustrated article on Mrs. Trollope, the author of "Widow Barnaby," and the at one time much-discussed "Domestic Manners of the Americans."

M. B. MORONEY, the well-known dealer in second-hand books at 404 Central Avenue, Cincinnati, O., has begun the publication of a monthly publication entitled The Thought of the Time, which will oppose "booze" in every form. It is published at fifty cents the year and five cents the copy.

The Atlantic Monthly for September will have an article on "Bret Harte's Heroines," by Henry C. Merriam; on "Edwin Lawrence Godkin," by James Ford Rhodes; on "The Spanish Drama of To-day," by Elizabeth Wallace; and on "The Playwright and the Playgoers," by Brander Matthews.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

STANLEY WEYMAN, according to the London correspondent of the New York Herald, will write no more stories. His latest work, "The Wild Geese," just issued in England, will probably be his last fiction.

MME. MODJESKA has written her memoirs and impressions in two volumes. The first deals with her life in Poland, where her friends included Paderewski, the De Reszkes and Sienkiewicz, the author of "Quo Vadis." The second volume tells of Mme. Modjeska's early life in the United States. She did not go there is the first place to act, but as the leader of a group of Poles who hoped to establish a new Utopia in California.

THE widespread interest which "The Career of a Journalist," recently published by B. W. Dodge & Co., has aroused has already rendered necessary a second edition. This gives the author opportunity in a new preface to insert an answer to certain strictures and criticisms which have appeared in the reviewing press. He gladly admits that among the great flock of newspaper goats are a few sheep.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

H. M. CALDWELL & Co. will bring out this fall "Caldwell's Boys' and Girls' Home Annual," which is planned to resemble the old English and American annuals for adult readers, in being composed of entirely new stories, new verses and new pictures.

JAMES POTT & Co. will publish in the fall a book by Edward B. d'Auvergne on "The English Castles," discussing the architecture of the English castles, and endeavoring to reconstruct for his readers those old strongholds of feudal times. The book will be furnished with thirty-two illustrations.

THE OUTING PUBLISHING COMPANY have in preparation a practical handbook on the horse, entitled "The Horse—How to Ride and Drive," by F. M. Ware, which will give information on such subjects as "How to know the horse you buy," "How to feed your horse," "How to harness, saddle and bridle," etc.

THE GRAFTON PRESS, New York City, have just brought out a genealogy of the Coles or Cowles family, by Ernest B. Cole, of Indianapolis, entitled "The Descendants of James Cole of Plymouth, 1633," also, "Egypt and Its Betrayal," by Elbert E. Farman, ex-consul at Cairo, already fully described in these columns.

WARNER'S "American Charities," which for several years has been the standard work of reference upon its subject, is to be presented in entirely revised and enlarged form by its publishers, Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., this fall. The same firm announce a new poetic version of "The Pearl," a medieval poem, by Professor Sophie Jewell, of Wellesley.

L. KNIGHT, 16 Cortland Street, New York City, handles the fine art edition of "The Greater Works of Bulwer-Lytton," gotten up by G. J. Howell & Co., London. The edition is in twelve volumes, with photogravure illustrations, beautifully printed by T. & A. Constable, of Edinburgh. It will be known as the Edinburgh edition of Bulwer.

THE FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY will publish in September the poetical works of William Cleaver Wilkinson, Professor of Poetry and Criticism in the University of Chicago. The bulk of the forthcoming "Poetical Works," which will be in five volumes, is comprised in the following titles: "The Epic of Saul," "The Epic of Paul," and "The Epic of Moses."

THOMAS WHITTAKER, INC., has just placed upon the market "Whittaker's Model of the Motor Cycle. It is gotten up by the same manufacturer who prepared the model of the automobile, locomotive and other mechanical charts. It consists of colored plates with explanatory letterpress, the plates being superimposed and arranged so as to give a proper idea of the size and location of the frame, running gear, motor, etc.

B. H. BLACKWELL, Oxford, Eng., has brought out the Stanhope Essay for 1908, by Edward S. Lyttel, on "Sir Walter Temple." The author has succeeded in drawing a picture of his subject, whom he considers "in some respects a remarkable figure among the statesmen of his generation, in others as dwindling into insignificance," and of his times, that must be taken into account in studying the diplomatic history of England in the seventeenth century.

B. W. DODGE & Co. have in preparation "The Sundial," a mystery story, by Fred M. White, author of "The Crimson Blind," "The Broken Snare," a psychological romance, by Ludwig Lewisohn; "The Stuff of Dreams," a New York story, by Edith Sessions Tupper; "Pomp and Circumstance," by Dorothea Gerard; "An Adventure in Exile," a romance of Normandy, by Richard Duffy; also, "The Marooners," a story of West Indian wreckers and beachcombers, by Charles Frederick Holder.

MASSENET's opera, which is to be performed in New York this season with Mary Garden in the leading rôle, "The Juggler of Notre Dame," is founded on the story which Anatole France tells in "Our Lady's Juggler," which is included in the volume "Mother of Pearl," the first volume to appear in the complete limited edition of France's works in English, now being published by John Lane Company, New York City. This week another volume has been added in the series, "The Garden of Epicurus."

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS will shortly publish another volume about Canada in Sir C. P. Lucas's Historical Geography of the British Colonies. The author, Professor H. E. Egerton, confines himself to history, starting with British rule to the Quebec Act, and ending with the Dominion of to-day; and the volume contains several appendices, ten maps and an index. J. D. Rogers, who wrote "Australasia" for the same series, will deal with the geography of Canada in another volume, to be issued presently.

"THE DUKE'S MOTTO" has been decided upon as the title of the novel by Justin Huntly McCarthy which Harper Brothers expect to publish next week. This is the second novel the author published this year, his "Seraphica" having been issued by the Harpers last February. Books by the following authors are in active preparation: Mrs. Humphry Ward, Robert Hichens, William Dean Howells, Lew Wallace, Hamlin Garland, George Harvey, Augustus Thomas, Kirk Munroe, Peter Newell and many others.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish in the fall "Angling and Art in Scotland," some fishing experiences related and illustrated, in which a parallel is drawn between the art of the angler and that of the landscape painter, with thirty-two colored plates and other illustrations, by Ernest E. Briggs; "Pestalozzi—an Account of His Life and Work," by H. Holman, formerly Professor of Education in the University College of Wales, Aberystwith; also, "The Russian Conquest of the Caucasus," with maps and illustrations, by J. F. Baddeley.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will add to their series of fine color books "The Greater Abbeys of England," by the Right Rev. Francis A. Gasquet, head of the Benedictine Order in England and author of a number of other books dealing with the history of English monasteries. The volume will be illustrated with sixty full-page pictures in color from paintings specially made for this work by Warwick Goble. Another book in this series is by H. J. Mackinder, on "The Rhine," describing the river from its source among the Alps to its mouth. The work will contain fifty-four full-page illustrations in color from paintings specially made for it by Mrs. James Jardine. It will be furnished also with two maps in color and several charts.

PAUL ELDER & Co., San Francisco, Cal., announce a volume of essays by Charles Mulford Robinson, entitled "The Call of the City," in which the author takes up the cudgels for the disparaged town; "Quatrains of Christ," by George Creel, a Kansas City journalist, whose faith is the simple, unquestioning creed of the early Christians, with an introduction by Julian Hawthorne; "Animal Analogues," by Professor Robert William Wood, of Johns Hopkins University by which and the author's free-hand drawings observers will be able to tell an antelope from a canteloupe, etc.; also, a new edition of Professor Wood's irresistible book, "How to Tell the Birds from the Flowers," of which upwards of 20,000 copies were sold last December.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have in preparation for the fall a new book by Charles Battell Loomis, entitled "A Holiday Touch, and Other Tales of Dauntless Americans," consisting chiefly of anecdotes of Americans "who won out smiling;" "The Carolyn Wells Year Book," a volume of fifty-two engagement blanks, faced by pages of light verses, limericks or jests by the inimitable Miss Wells, occasionally decorated by Miss Bertha Stuart, Oliver Herford, Strothman and de Fornaro; "The Pleasant Thought Year Book," for each day of the year, selected by Mary R. J. Dubois; also, "Davy Jones's Yarns, and Other Salted Songs," by Thomas R. Ybarra, with illustrations by Henry Mayer, of the New York Times, a book in which the imagination and humor of both versifier and artist are restrained by nothing but propriety.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just brought out an important volume on "Hydro-Electric Practice," by Henry A. E. C. von Schon, treating authoritatively of a subject in which there is a rapid growing interest. The volume is profusely illustrated with charts, diagrams, plans, profiles and views. It will be of great value to the engineer, manufacturer, investor, financier and the promoter. They announce a full-length novel by Louis Beck, entitled "The Settlers of Karossa Creek," the scene of which is laid in California and the South Seas; also, notable editions of three of Scott's masterpieces, "Kenilworth," "Ivanhoe" and "The Talisman," each of which will contain a preface by the Hon. Mrs. Maxwell Scott, the granddaughter of Scott's biographer, Lockhart, and the great-granddaughter of Sir Walter himself, and illustrations in color from original paintings by Henry J. Ford, Maurice Grieffenhagen and Simon Harmon Vedder.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY will bring out next month in their Household edition the final complete edition of "The Poems of Edmund Clarence Stedman, with a portrait, which will also be issued in library form; "Poems of American History," a storehouse of hundreds of favorite poems on the history of our country from 1492 to the present day, edited by Burton E. Stevenson; "Poems of New England," edited by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, now first published in separate form from Longfellow's collection of "Poems of Places;" also, "Heracles," a dramatic poem in twelve scenes, by George Cabot Lodge. Later in the year they will publish a Cambridge edition of "Dryden's Poetical Works," edited by George R. Hayes; a Household edition of "The Poems of Richard Watson Gilder," the first complete edition of one of the foremost American poets of to-day; "By the Christmas Fire," by Samuel M. Crothers, Christmas essays imbued with a spirit of happiness; "A Happy Half-Century," by Agnes Repplier, who writes in her happiest view of some of the manners and customs of our grandmothers; also, "Park Street Papers," by Bliss Perry, editor of The Atlantic Monthly, dealing more or less directly with the magazine and with some of the great New England authors.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce for September 15 a novel entitled "The Sovereign Good," by Mrs. Archer M. Huntington, ("Helen Huntington,") dealing with the social gayeties of the New York "smart set" in New York, on the Long Island beaches, on the banks of the Hudson, in Paris and other fashionable resorts. New Yorkers need hardly be told that its author is part of the world she portrays, and that her pictures of the manners and customs, tone, temper, and whole surface and aspect of New York society are faithful transcripts from life and at every point in close contact with reality. They have in preparation a volume entitled "The Great Fight: poems and sketches," by the late William Henry Drummond, with a biographical sketch of the author of "The Habitant," etc., by Mrs. Drummond, which brings together the material which remained unpublished at the time of the author's death. The collection has been made by Mrs. Drummond, who has provided the book with a preface containing some illuminating comments upon the poems, and with a brief and very interesting account of Dr. Drummond's life. As to the book itself, it is full of the quaint French-Canadian humor and sentiment, and breathes also the devotion to sport and the love of life in the open which together have attracted a large circle of devoted and appreciative readers.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—Rockwell & Churchill, printers, who for thirty-four years have been at 39 Arch Street, have removed to 291 and 293 Congress Street, one minute's walk from the South Station.

CLEVELAND, O.—C. W. Hippard, for ten years in charge of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, has now associated himself with F. M. Barton, 708-712 Caxton Building, and together they will continue the publication of theological and religious works, which Mr. Barton has made his special line for years.

NEW YORK CITY.—Sieber & Trussell Manufacturing Co., of New York and St. Louis, have applied for membership in the Stationers' Board of Trade.

NEW YORK CITY.—Newton & Cartwright, a new firm of publishers, are established in offices at 156 Fifth Avenue. The members of the firm are Donald W. Newton, for many years a buyer for the Henry Siegel chain of stores, and Otho G. Cartwright, until recently professor of history at Teachers' College, New York City, and editor of several educational publications. Newton & Cartwright will represent several important Western publishers and will also run a line of stationery.

PORTLAND, ME.—Loring, Short & Harmon, whose entire stock was destroyed by fire on June 19, are now fully equipped for business as to their retail Book and Stationery Department in a store in the Congress Square Hotel, which they secured the morning after the fire. They have now a complete and full line of the goods usually kept by them. Their Office Supply Department is located at 49 Exchange Street, and their general offices, wholesale department and bindery are housed in the building at 28-32 Preble Street. Since the date of the fire they have bought entire new stock and machinery, and are now running as usual, only under the inconvenience of being in five places to carry on the business formerly contained in one building. Their old stand is being rebuilt, and two stories will be added to the building, giving them six extra floors, which they hope to occupy some time late in the fall.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplaced advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" book-sellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

JUST PUBLISHED

The REALM of LIGHT

By FRANK HATFIELD12mo. Maroon Cloth. Gold Stamp. 430 pages. $1.50*A Narrative of Thrilling Adventure and Experiences

TWO Chicago business men are persuaded by an old Hungarian to go with him into the heart of Africa on a voyage of discovery.

After months of hardship and thrilling adventure, a mountain is reached by the travelers, and owing to a singular phenomenon in which the surrounding hot sea recedes every seven years, an entrance is found to the interior of the mountain, and by almost superhuman effort, they finally reach its summit.

Here they find a people who, for thousands of years, have lived a life free from every form of self-seeking—the ideal life; a race of giants, physically and intellectually, who in our year one, had controlled the solar energy and made it subservient to their needs; had constructed telescopes so far superior to what are known that they bring the moon and planets within the range of intelligent perception; had worked out the principles of acoustics to such an extent that, without a medium, conversation could be carried on at great distances; had through their mastery of the problems of the storage of power, annihilated space; and had discovered wonderful methods of lighting and of time-keeping, through unseen forces.

The book abounds in romance, and food for thought and discussion for him who can read between the lines. Altogether, the work is destined to provoke discussion and create a large interest.

Paul Anthony Christian

By HIRAM W. HAYESBlue Cloth. 415 pages. $1.50 postpaidTHIS BRILLIANT NOVEL IS NOW IN ITS TENTH THOUSAND*

The interest in CHRISTIAN HEALING so rapidly spreading throughout the world finds an answer in the clear statements of this skilfully woven story of adventure, romance and helpfulness.

WHILE the work is pure fiction, it is, as the author says, "written with a purpose," and the story is so simply and dramatically told that it not only succeeds in its purpose, but also succeeds in stamping the author as a writer of the very highest order of fiction. Without going into details, it may be said that the purpose of "Paul Anthony, Christian," is not merely to help pass an idle hour, but to bring out a great truth; and while the love element has been subordinated, it is still a love story of the loftiest type. The book not only tends to elevate the individual, but American fiction as well.
